HER PATHER THINKS SAILORMAN

The Satter Is New Under Arrest for Luring the Girl Away, but the Bricettveu Can Find No Cine to Her Wherenbouts, Mary Lago will be 16 years old next month, uguese girl, who lived with her parents at 66 street until last Saturday. On that day the disappeared, and, despite the efforts of the police, she has not been found. From the facts which he has gathered, her father, Frank Lago,

About 9 o'clock last Saturday night, Mary and lier fourteen-year-old brother Frank were in the street near their home. Raphael Kassha, a ineteen-year-old sailor on the fishing smack Startha of New London, came along, and, giving Frank a dime, told him to find his sister and on the to him. Kumha had been a friend of the family since two years ago, when Lago and he worked together on a fishing smack. He visited the Lagos frequently when in New York, but had not been to see them during his last stay in port. Frank hunted up his sister, and Kamha asked her if she didn't want a new iress. She was delighted at the idea, and she and Kasaha and Frank buarded a car which took them to a store at 239 Grand street. There Kasaha bought her a skirt, a gaudy red waist, and a straw hat.

Mary changed her clothes in the store, and naking a bundle of the shirt waist and shaw which she took off, she gave them to her brother to leave at 78 Oliver street, where an Italian woman keeps a second-hand clothing store. Kasaha gave the boy ten cents and told him to say nothing to his parents when he got home Frank, however, told his father about Mary d itek in having a new dress bought for her. and Lago immediately put on his hat and coat and went to the foot of Fulton street, where the and Lago immediately put on his hat and coat and went to the foot of Fulton street, where the Martha was lying.

He hunted around for Kassha on the docks, and then going aboard the smack looked for lam in his berth. Not finding him there, he asserched every nook and cranny where a man might conceal himself, his knowledge of fishing amight conceal himself himself, his knowledge of the dock and was not on the boat, "said Lago, "and the other saliors said they had not seen him. I stayed on the dock and watched for him. I waited there from midnight till haif past five and then went home for a little sleep. At 9 o'clock Sunday morning I got up and went back to the boat. Kassha was there and is went up to him and asked him quietly where Mamie was. I told him I had been waiting for him all night and be said it was none of my business where he had been. I tried to take to him quietly and get him to tell me where he had taken the girl, but he would have nothing to say to me.

"I went back to the house and told my wife, and she and Frank went to the boat, thinking perhaps he would tell her. Frank asked him to come out on the dock to speak to his mother, but he refused. He said he was afraid they had a pollceman waiting for him and he thought he couldn't be arrested if he stayed on the smack. After that I went to the Oak street station and they put Detective Flay on the case. He found Rasha on the boat and arrested him about 11 o'clock. Kassha denied that he knew anything about the girl and that's all he would say.

"I am sure from what the boy says and from the description I got at the store of the man who bought the clothes, that Kassba was with my daughter and I believe he lak keeping her hidden sonewhere. Mamie told them in the store that law would have an him of the clothes, that Kassba was with my daughter and I believe he daughter and I believe he is keeping her hidden somewhere. Manus taid them in the store that also was going to Brooklyn, and I have been looking for her there all day.

Rasaha was arraigned before Police Justice McMahon in the Tombs Police Court, yesterday and was held in default of $2,000 bail for examination on Wednesday. He has consignally refused to talk ever since his arrest.

Mr. Lago says that his daughter is inclined to be wild, and has given him a great deal of trouble lately. Last week, because of her fondness for being in the streets at night, he tried to have her committed to the Gerry society's care, but the fire said she was 17 years old, and the agent would not hold her. In spite of her wildness, however, she was never out of the house over night before, and Mr. Lago is greatly agitated over her disappearance.

KACRED CATTLE QUARANTINED. Minety Days' Detention for Mr. Selmont's Brahmia Bulls and Cows,

While some of the twenty-four cages containmahip Elysia were being loaded vesterday he Fall River boat that was to take them to Newport, a Custom House officer appeared and announced that the sacred Brahmin cows and bulls must first be put in Quarantine for ninety days. It was arranged that Din Mahmoud, the medan keeper, should go with the sacred cattle, while Paul Daniel, the converted Brahshould go with the other animals to Newport.

animals big tears were in the eyes of both East ern style repeatedly as if parting forever. After they had got through Daniel went to each cow and bull and gave it sh affectionate pat upon the head.

When the Custom House officer arrived on a lighter to take the sacred animals away Din Mahmoud followed each eage as it was put about and saw that it was handled carefully. There were three Brahmin bulls and six Brahmin owns to be quarantined. They were taken to the animal quarantine at Garfield, New Jersey. The regulation that applies to this case was passed in Washington, Out. 13, 1890, and reads as follows:

passed in washington, Oct. 13, 1890, and reads as follows:

All noas easite imported into the United States from any part of the world, except North Central, and South America, shall be subject to a quarantine of dinety days, counting from date of arrival at the quarantine stotian. All sheep and other runninants and switts from any peri of the world, with the exception of North, Central and South America, shall be subject to a quarantine of fifteen days, counting from date of arrival at the quarantine station.

Consequently Mr. Oliver H. P. Belmont will not get his indian cows and bulls until next October. It was said last night that Mr. Belmont would make an effort to have his animals excepted from this law by applying to the authorities at Washington.

When the animals, under the charge of Paul Daniel, arrived at the Fall River line pier, they ware, juit upon the deck of the Providence and arranged in a semicircle. They made a great neise, and soon nearly all the passengers were collected around them. They will reach Newport at 5:30 o clock this morning, and will be taken to Mr. Belmont's farm at once.

TILLMANITES CONTROL THE COURT. The South Carolina Dispensory Law to Be Passed Upon Again.

COLUMBIA, S. C., July 30 .- To-day Eugene B. Gary succeeded Associate Justice Samuel Mc Gowan, making the composition of the Supreme Court two Tillmanites and one "Conservative." In view of this change the Tillman administration has already begun steps to test the consti-tutionality of the Dispensary act of 1803.

An appeal has been taken to the full court from Justice Pope's decision of last week, refusing to release Silver, a whiskey dealer, ar-rested under the act of 1893. The court is not in seasion now, and unless a special serion is called the case cannot be heard before No

Despite published reports that ex-Ward Man Jeremiah S. Levy, who is under indictment for accepting a $20 bribe from Charles Krumm, a Chrystie street concert hall keeper, had fied from justice, Levy was on hand yesterday morning before Justice Martins in the Court of General Sessions. He were the uniform of the mounted squad, to which he has been attached since being transferred from the Eldridge stree station. He was accompanied by his new coun-sel, Abraham Levy, who has succeeded Louis J. Grant, and looked comfortable and happy. As-sistant District Attorney Osborne represented the people. Postmaster Dayton sat beside Judge

Mr. Osborne said that Levy would be prose cuted under section 72 of the Penal Code, re lating to bribery for the purpose of causing neglect or violation of official duty. The penalty is imprisonment for not more than ten years, or a fine of not more than $5,000, or both. A conwhich or forther any office held by the offender, and forever disqualifies him from holding any public office under the State.

A panel of 100 citizens had been summoned. It was soon evident that it would take all day to get a jury.

Joseph S. Marx of 197 Canal street said that he objected to serving as a juror in a political trial.

"Do you regard this trial as a political trial?" saked Mr. Osborne.

asked Mr. Osborne.

"Yes, sir, I do," replied Talesman Marx.
"Challenged," said Mr. Osborne,
Bamuel Serever of 65 East Broadway was acceptable at first to the prosecution.

"Are you a Hebrew, sir?" asked Lawyer Levy.
"Yes, sir, I am?" replied the talesman.
"I accept you, 'Mr. Severer,'" said Lawyer
Levy.

"Yes, sir, I am?" replied the talesman.
"I accept you, 'Mr. Severer,' " said Lawyer
Levy.
"I challenge," said Mr. Osborne, with a smile.
In all twenty-two talesmen were examined, but at 5 o'clock, when Judge Martine adjourned court until this morning, only five Jurors had been selected. They were: Lewis W. Briggs, a painter, of 3 Christopher street, living at 347 Bleecker atreet; William F. Weber, a coal dealer at Ninety-third street and the Western Boulevard, living at 151 West Ninety-ninth street; G.
E. Allen, a merchant and member of the New York Athletic Club, living at 160 West Ninetysixth street; William T. P. Peters, a salesman, of 74 Clinton place, and Hobert E. Holder, a real estate broker of 708 Tremont avenue.

Judge Martine committed Levy to the Tombs, Lawyer Levy asked that the committal be revoked. The Judge said be was sorry to commit any officer in uniform, but under the circumstances he was compelled to do so.

Lawyer Levy said that the rumor about the ex-ward man's disappearance was caused by a letter which his bondsman, George Groveling, received on Saturday. This letter was as follows:

"FRIEND GRORGE: You had better surrender

He Is to He Removed Unions He Files One

An order has been made by Judge Bookstaver of the Court of Common Pleas for the removal of William S. Keiley as assignee of Alexander Weiss, dealer in hair goods at 30 East Tenth street, unless within five days he files a bond as assignee, of $10,000. Mr. Kelley is the assignment clerk of the Court of Common Pleas, and so did not need to call the attention of himself to the fact that he has filed no bond.

Welss failed on Feb. 2, 1893, making Kelley his assignee. His assets were said in the sched-ule to be about $8,221, and his Habilities larger. tile to be about $8,221, and his liabilities larger. He has since carried on his business, as he says, by permission of Mr. Kelley. He has done as if no assignce had been appointed. He has lost about $2,000 in the business, and the stock, which was worth at the time of the assignment between $6,000 and $7,000, has shrunk considerably in value. Since he has conducted the business he has sold about $13,000 worth of goods, having kept replenishing his stock. He has about $3,000 worth of stock now on hand. He says he has paid some creditors from the sales. He says also that he paid over to Mr. Keiley $1,500, and received back $700 to assist in carrying on the business.

Keiley says that some of the creditors signed a permission that the business should be carried on. Solomon Friedman, a preferred creditor for $2,000, says that he gave no such consent. Friedman made the motion for the removal of Mr. Kelley.

Friedman made the motion for the removal of Mr. Kelley.
On Jan. 28 last Mr. Kelley was removed as assignee of Charles C. Reed & Co., paint manufacturers, by Judge Pryor. The firm had falled in April, 1809, for $153,031, with assets of $40,000. Mr. Kelley was assignee nearly four years and filed no bond. He also showed in that case that some of the creditors had given him permission to continue the business.

Mrs. Tiedemann Belabors the Policeman Who Saved Her Life,

Mrs. Eliza Tiedemann, who keeps a confec-tionery store at 2,296 Third avenue, was arrested at midnight on Sunday under peculiar circumstances. She closed her store and started to cross Third avenue at 125th street. At this point on Third avenue the cable cars run swiftly in order to cross the 125th street cable car tracks. Mrs. Tiedemann ran in front of a Third avenue car, going south, just as another car came along in the opposite direction. BUY DOWN ON SATURDAY BY 195TH STREET CABLE CAR.

Es Had Been an Amusing Witness Befor the Lexow Committee-The Body at the Morgue Unidentified Until Yesterday. Brevet-Major John Mortimer Scarle, familiarly called Brannigan Searle, who furnished some humorous testimony on June 28 before the Lexow committee, was killed early on Saturday torning by a cable car at the curve at Manhattan street and Amsterdam avenue. He stood on the track as car D of the 123th street line came around the curve at full speed. Gripman Mar-tin Morris of 254 East Forty-eighth street rang the bell, and the Major tried to get out of the way, but the speed of the car was so great that It struck him before he could escape. He was taken to Manhattan Hospital, where he died a few minutes after his arrival there. The gripman was locked up in the 125th street police is stationed at the public bath at the foot of Duane street, of which the Major was the keeper, saw the account of the accident in the newspapers on Sunday, and not having seen the Major at his post since Friday at noon, he began to fear that the dead man was his friend. Yesterday the policeman went to 633 Hudson street, where the Major lived with his sister, Miss Anna Searie, and asked her when she had last seen her brother. She said:

"Johnny went down to Coney Island Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and hasn't come home yet. But he often goes away like that, so I guess he's all right. He looked well when he left."

"Miss Searie," said the policeman, "the Major's now at the Morgue, dead, run dewn by a cable car."

Miss Searie, who is quite old, was much affected by the information, but she went with Delaney to the Morgue, where they both identified the body. It will be removed to-day to the Major's late home.

Major Searie was born fifty-one years ago in Philadelphia. When 12 years old he came here with his father, John Searie, a printer. At the outbreak of the rebellion he enlisted in the Seventy-first New York Regiment as a drummer boy. Later he became a Captain and Brevet Major, and served for five years. He was a member of McClellan Post, G. A. R., and of the Seventy-first New York Regiment as a drummer boy. Later he became a Captain and Brevet Major, and served for five years. He was a member of McClellan Post, G. A. R., and of the Seventy-first Regiment Veteran Corps. He was also an active member of the Ninth Assembly district organization of Tammany Hali.

The Major was subpomaed by Lawyer Goff to testify before the Lexow committee, and on June 28 amused the Senators by his witty answers to some of Mr. Goff's questions. He refused to take the oath, as he was a Quaker, and therefore affirmed. Before Mr. Goff could commence the examination the Major fourished his commission "from Andrew Jackson, President of the United States, sir," and related his experience with Senator Robertson at the first battle of B

MORTALITY IN THE STATE.

The Number of Beaths in June Exceeded That in June, 1808, by 1,000

ALBANY, July 30. The bulletin of the State Board of Health for the month of June says: "June has usually the lowest mortality of any nonth in the year, but the 9,800 deaths of the present month exceed the number for May by 500, that of June, 1993 (a month of remarkably low death rate), by 1,000, and of June, 1892, by 700. The average daily mortality was 327, and of May, 300. From symptic diseases there were 1,790 deaths, or 500 more than in May, but this was more than met by the increased diarrhoral mortality, the customary increase in deaths from this cause being 200 greater than in June, 1893. But the diarrhocal death rate of June is variable, being in some years double that of others. The increase was not delayed.

There were more deaths than ousual from diseases of the digestive and nervous systems, an increase noted when the diarrheal mortality is excessive. There was an unusually large mortality from accidents and violence, largely drowning and railway injuries. From small-put there were fifteen deaths in New York, eight in Brooklyn, and one in Salina, near Syracuse: Newburgh recently reports two cases. The average temperature was two degrees above the normal, with about 50 degrees variation between the maximum and minimum; the rainfall was about the average, there were few cloudy days, and the prevailing wind, as in May, was southwest."

FROM PEEKSKILL'S TENTED FIELD. A Corporal Put in the Guard House for Assaulting His Captain.

STATE CAMP, PERKSKILL, July 30.-Last night's thunderstorm and a strong breeze from the river did little to alleviate the heat of the camp this morning. A corporal of the Four-teenth Regiment is in the guard house charged with attempting to assault his Captain. It is said the corporal was affected by the heat. He will probably be reduced to the ranks. The temperature this afternoon has been pleasant, temperature this afternoon has been pleasant, the heat being tempered by a stiff breeze. At 2:30 o'clock the officer's school was held under the trees on the bluff overlooking the river.

ELMER HIGGINS'S BODY FOUND.

He Had Written a Letter to His Wife Saying He Intended to Kill Himself. The body of Elmer Higgins of 969 Broadway, Williamsburgh, was found yesterday in Newark Bay by two fishermen. Later in the day a bridge tender on the plank road sent a coat ntaining papers and a rubber stamp belonging Higgins to the Third precinct station in Newark.

On Friday Higgins's wife received a letter from him in which he said that his body would be found in the Passaic River. The coat was found at the Hackensack Bridge. He was formerly employed by the Merchants' Insurance company of Newark. The body was identified by relatives.

Not Entitled to a Mandamus

Justice Stover of the Supreme Court has denied the application of Ebrich Brothers for a writ of mandamus against the Mayor, the De partment of Public Works, and the Bureau of Encumbrances, seeking to compel the Bureau to 'remove certain obstructions about their premises, 116 West Twenty-third street. The ower booth on the corner of Sixth avenue Ehrich says, is an annoyance, as is also the plat-form in front of 114 West Twenty-third street, on which dummies dressed in ladies autis are displayed. To the west the Ehrichs' neighbor is a grocer, who makes an elaborate displayed his wares. All these obstructions are outside the building line. Justice Stover says that the legal right of the relators to the mandamus is not clear, and they must seek relief in an action at law.

Got Their Franchise at Last.

The directors of the New York State Electric and Power Company of Williamsburgh, of which Noah L. Cocheu is the President, met at 74 Broadway resterday afternoon and increased the capital stock from $200,000 to $600,000. The company recently obtained a franchise from the Board of Aldermen, after baving waited for nearly nine years and spent thousands of dollars.

UTILISHD ARRENS'S WOODEN LEG. Mrs. Abress Brenks the Wetet

Mrs. Ottilie Ahrens, who keeps a German boarding house at 57 North Second street, Wil-liamsburgh, has long cherished a cast-off wooden leg, which belonged to her husband, Henry, r tobacconist, who is serving a year is the Kings county penitentiary for beating her. Abrens has well-to-do relatives in Germany. He lost his leg by the premature discharge of a cannon. He came to this country about ten years ago and soon after married. Mrs. Ahrens opened a boarding house, and then Ahrens's trouble began. He suspected his wife of being too attentive to some of her boarders, and he asked her to give up the business. She refused, and Ahrens beat her. He was arers, and he asked her to give up the business. She refused, and Ahrens beat her. He was arrested and sent to the penitentiary for six months. When he was released he went back to the boarding house, and, unscrewing his wooden leg, beat his wife again. He was sent to the penitentiary again. When he got out he learned that a boarder named Schneider had become infatuated with Mrs. Ahrens.

Ahrens thrashed the boarder with the wooden leg and was again arrested. Since then he has passed little of his time out of prison. The last time he was released he took off his wooden leg and, hopping around on the other leg, chased his wife and all the boarders out of the house. He heard that the police were coming and hopped out of the house, leaving his wooden leg behind. Mrs. Ahrens kept it, and when her husband was sent back to the penitentiary she put it away in a bureau. Ahrens, meanwhile, had got another leg.

On Sunday evening Mrs. Ahrens received a visit from Mrs. Margaret Rigney, a neighbor. Mrs. Rigney was intoxicated, and wanted to fight. When Mrs. Ahrens tried to put Mrs. Rigney out, Mrs. Rigney hit Mrs. Ahrens in the face. Mrs. Ahrens got the cast off-leg and struck Mrs. Rigney, breaking her left wrist. Mrs. Rigney ran into the street screaming. Policeman Kessel took her and Mrs. Ahrens to the Bedford avenue station, where Mrs. Rigney's wrist was set by Ambulance Surgeon Necseen. She was then locked up for intoxication.

Mrs. Ahrens was held for assault. When both were arraigned in the Lee Avenue Police Court yesterday, Mrs. Higney declined to press her charge against Mrs. Ahrens and Mrs. Ahrens was discharged. Mrs. Rigney was also let go.

GOTTSCHALK COMPANY ACCUSED. A Declaration that the Whiskey Trust Is

BALTIMORE, July 30.- The whiskey distillers against whom the charge of doctoring liquor in bond has been made are the members of the Gottschalk Distilling Company, one of the largest concerns in the country and the only one of any size that is fighting the Whiskey Trust. To-day the Collector of Internal Revenue ordered the Government storekeeper in charge neither to receive any whiskey in bond nor to allow any to be taken away. The Gott-schalk company deny that there has been any attempt to defraud and say that the investigation will prove their innocence. The charge in turn is made that the hand of the Whiskey turn is made that the hand of the Whiskey Trust will be discerned in this affair. Joseph Gottschalk declared that the entire difficulty had arison through an error on the gauger's part in making the tests, and that his failure to read the Instrument correctly had unjustly placed the company in the position of having their whiskey "doctored."

When asked to-day regarding the trouble, Collector Vandiver said he was conducting a thorough investigation, and no action in the case would be taken for several days. He admitted that serious charges had been made by his office against the distillery, but could not tell who was to blame.

against the distinct, to blame.

"The rumor regarding this affair," said the Collector, "may have been magnified, and the company be in no way to blame, but I can say nothing further for a day or two. The difficulty may have been a mistake on the gauger's part, or may have been a mistake on the gauger's part, or otherwise.

Mr. Albert Gottschalk is the head of the cor-poration, which has a branch establishment at Sallsbury on the Eastern Shore, Mr. Joseph Gottschalk is Transurer, and Mr. Louis Becker, Secretary, About a year ago the company began to branch out and do a more extensive business than ever. This put it in the attitude of fighting the Whiskey Trust.

FRAUDS ON THE PENSION BUREAU

Jesse C. Hansee, a pension attorney of Hoboken, who was convicted about two weeks ago before Judge Green of the United States District Court at Trenton, on charges of collecting fraudulent pensions and withholding pension moneys lawfully collected, was arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner Shields in this city. Three indictments were presented against him, charging him with perpetrating frauds on the Pension Bureau. Commissioner Shields committed him under $15,000 ball for trial at the next term of the United States Circuit Court. the next term of the United States Circuit Court.

Court.

Judge Green had sentenced Hanser to pay a fine of $500 and the costs of the case before him. He did not imprison him because of his age. Hanser is over 70 years old. Thirty indictments have been presented against him in the lower courts, charging him with collecting exerbitant fees from pensioners, defrauding pensioners, and putting in false claims. He had large offices at the corner of Hudson and Second streets.

Mrs. Rosie Stern of 30 West Seventeenth street, a neatly dressed young woman, went to the Jefferson Market Police Court Sunday with her two sons, Bertie, aged 10, and Milton, aged 5 years, both of whom were also neatly dressed. Mrs. Stern said that she was utterly without Mrs. Stern said that she was utterly without means, having been deserted by her husband flustave several months ago. Justice Hogan told her to call again on Monday. Mrs. Stern said then that she had no place to go, having been elected from her house. The clerks in the court subscribed $2 to keep her and her children until yesterday morning, when Justice Hogan committed them to the care of the Society for the Provention of Cruelty to Children.

Didn't Believe the Policeman, John Watson of 235 Conover street, Brooklyn, who was formerly steward of the yacht Atalanta, was arraigned yesterday before Justice Tighe in the Butier street court on a charge of assault. Policeman W. Fitzgerald of the Hamassault. Policeman W. Fitzgerald of the Ham-liton avenue station was the complainant. He avore that he arrowed Watson for acting in a disorderly manner in front of his house on Fri-day night, and deciared that Watson attacked him. Watson not only denied the charge, but accused the policeman of beating him and his wife with his club without any provocation whatever. Justice Tighe dismissed the com-plaint, and advised Watson to go before Pulice Commissioner Welles and make a charge against Fitzgerald. Fitzgerald.

CANADA'S OFFUR PRADE. It fo Reveloping Reptilly at the Expense of OTTAWA, Ont., July 30.—United States special officers are exerting every effort on this side of the line to locate the source of supply and the channels through which such large quantities of refined opium are finding their way ac border without the payment of duty. To-day Commissioner of Customs Walters furnished some figures on this subject which go to show that in the importation of crude opium into British Columbia for refining purposes there has been a decline of 44 per cent, as compared with last year, the figures supplied being for the fiscal year ending June 30. The figures supplied by Commissioner Walters give evidence that the field of operation is being largely transferred from the Pacific coast to the province of Quebec, where, within a year or so, a considerable quantity of the opium smuggled across the border is refined in Montreal.

In 1880 the total quantity of crude optum imported into Canada was only 5,000 pounds. In 1885 it had increased to 80,000 pounds, and in 1800 to 130,000 pounds. In 1893 it ran up to 185,000 pounds, the maximum point. The 1895 it had increased to 80,000 pounds, and in 1895 it ran up to 185,000 pounds, the maximum point. The figures for the fiscal year just closed show a very material decline, which will not be unpleasant news for the United States officers who have been entrusted with putting the traffic down. The total importation of crude optum into British Columbia during the year just closed feli to 82,000 pounds. Taking the last quarter, the quantity imported into Victoria, where nine-tenths of the refining is carried on, fell from 29,000 to 7,200 pounds, as compared with the corresponding period of last year.

Although there has been a large decline in the total quantity of the raw material imported into the Dominion, as well as into British Columbia, it is a significant fact that in the quantity imported into the province of Quebec and entered at Montreal there has been a steady increase going on. Last year there was an increase of over 100 per cent. In the quantity of crude optium entered at Montreal as compared with 1892. The impression in official circles is that the refining which was formerly done in British Columbia by the Chinamen is now being done in Montreal, where the refined material is nearer a market than on the Pacific coast. The chance of detection is also lessened, as there is always more or less risk of the refined article being tracked when it has to be carried long distances.

With the exception of the fact that Montreal appears to have been made the basis of operation in supplanting the British Columbia refineries, the figures furnished by the Commissioner of Customs may be considered satisfactory, as they point conclusively to a very large seduction in the production of the refined article for smuggling into the United States.

A prominent official to-day, in discussing this illicit traffic in opium, said that it had often been a matter of surprise to him that Quebec. Smuggling was carried on in that province to a greater extent than in all the rest of the provinces combined, and illicit distilling wi

THE CATHOLIC SUMMER SCHOOL. Reception in Honor of Archbishop Corrigan

in the Plattsburgh Opera House. PLATTSBURGH, July 30,-A tumult of applause greeted the Archbishop of New York co-night as he rose in his box at the Opera House to acknowledge the hearty welcome ex-tended to him by the Rev. Dr. Conaty on behalf of the Catholic Summer School of America. The large auditorium was crowded, the occasion being a reception in honor of the Archbishop. Mr. J. C. Carr of Worcester, Mass.: Mrs Driscoll of Everett, Mass.; Miss Cronyn of Buffalo, and Miss Helen Fitzgerald of New York rendered several numbers of musical pro-cramme, and then the Archbishop was intro duced by Dr. Conaty.

In his speech he outlined a policy for all Catholics in this country to follow with regard to intellectual movement. His praise of reading circle work and his insistence that they should circle work and his insistence that they should be found in every parish in the country was received with rapturous commendation.

At the close of his remarks, the Archbishop, with Hishop Gabriels, Assemblyman Baker of Plattsburgh, the Very Rev. Dr. Lynch of Utica, and Dr. Conaty, went upon the stage. Almost every individual in the audience was then formally introduced to the prelates.

Among those presented were the Jewish rabbi. Dr. Henry Bockowitz of Philadelphia, and Mr. Henry M. Frank of the Jewish Chautsuqua, Chicagó.

To-morrow morning, under the guidance of the Rev. Joseph H. McMahon, Chairman of the Executive Committee, the Archbishop will make a trip to Lake Placid. The Summer School students go for an excursion on the lake as guests of the Champlain Transportation Company.

Delegates to the Catholic Young Men's Convention are arriving in large numbers by every boat and train from the North and South. Many of the delegates attended the evening session of the Catholic Summer School.

All the delegates will assemble in a body at the Pontifical mass at 8t. John's Church, which will be celebrated by the Rt. Rev. H. E. Gabriels, lishep of Ogdensburg. The opening session will be held in the Opera House immediately after mass. The New York delegation is coming in a body and is expected to-morrow morning.

WON'T PAY THEIR TAXES. The Residents at Ft. John, Island of Oricans, in Revolt.

QUEBEC, July 30 .- A small revolt is going on at St. John, Island of Orleans. The resident refuse to pay the usual wharfage fees on freight landed at the Government wharf there. On Thursday last two members of the Dominion Thursday last two members of the Dominion police force arrived from Ottawa, and at once went on duty levying wharfage fees and selzing goods whenever payment was refused. Their action has greatly incensed the populace, and trouble is feared. The inhabitants of the place are anemies of taxation in any form, and are credited with having a large interest in the whiskey smuggling business, so large that customs officers have found it impossible to search for or selze contraband goods in that locality.

HIS PATRIMONY AT STAKE

YOUNG BUMPRREY'S EXPERIENCE WITH A MONEY LEXDER.

His Creditors All the Sainte She Hold for Him -Fine Old Syttles Unary Floaded. Pearsall Humphrey of this city, who reached his majority about a year ago, set out soon after for Europe, and after doing the Continent, turned up in London last January. His father, William M. Humphrey, had died on March 12, 1890, leaving about $50,000, to a third of which Pearsall was entitled. In Lon don he fell in with Douglass Norman, a lawyer. His funds ran out about the end of March, and on April 19 he took a loan of $6,000 from Harry Glanville Southwell of 1 St. Kitts Filey, Yorkshire, and in return as security assigned his third interest in his father's estate to Southwell. Soon after he

st. Kitts Filey. Vorkshire. and in return as security assigned his third interest in his father's catate to Southwell. Soon after he got $750 more, and on May 14 he obtained another loan of $1,500, both of which were charged up against his interest in his father's estate. Southwell is said to be a money lender and a friend of Norman, Besides these claims Norman has charged the young man between $3,000 and $3,500 for legal services, of which sum $2,500 is charged by Norman for looking after the interest of young Pearsall in his father's estate.

The estate was in charge of Margaret P. Humphrey, the mother of Pearsall, who says that Southwell is but a dummy of Norman, and that an effort has been made to fleece the young man. She says that Norman has already been paid $1,800. All the claims against her son for the five months he was in London amount to about $15,000. She says that she is willing as the administratrix of her lusband to pay the just debts of her son, but that she is informed that her son did not receive more than $5,000 altogether, and that the claims against him are largely made up of usurfone charges made for the loans. She declares that as much as 50 and 60 per cent, interest was charged lim for loans for three months. She says the claims of Southwell and Norman will take all her son's interest in the estate, and that her son is "young and easily influenced."

Southwell says that Pearsall Eumphrey left London for this country on June 27 without letting him know. Mrs. Humphrey, as the administratrix of her husband, had meanwhile gone through an accounting, and a month ago got a final decree from the Surrogate, on which she could get her discharge on paying her san Pearsall 334s shares of the stock of the United States Express Company, 184 shares of the stock of the wildox Silver Plate Company, and $2,310.70 in cash. When she qualified as administratrix of her husband she deposited the stocks of the estale with her bondaman. Patriek H. Fay, to secure him. She says that Fay has declined to give her from England, has been at the Grehaus from England, has been at the Grehaus Cold Spring.

Justice Stover of the Supreme Court gave Southwell yesterday an injunction against Mrs. Humphrey and Fay, forbidding them from disposing of the interest of Pearsall Humphrey in the estate until the determination of an action Southwell has brought to recover that interest. WILL OF JAMES E. WARD.

The Entire Estate of Over a Million Left to

The will of the late James E. Ward, owner of the Ward line of steamers, leaves everything absolutely to his daughter. Florence A. Alker, wife of Alphonse A. Alker. The real estate is valued at $100,000 and the personal estate is said to be $1,000,000. The will was written wholly by the testator.

The will was executed only six days before the testator's death, when he was apparently in good health.

A HOT DRIVE ON A HOT NIGHT. It Ended in the Death of the Horse and the Arrest of His Drivers.

James Mechan, Jr., and William Quirk, 20-year-old residents of New Rochells, hired a orse and wagon on Sunday of William Stevenhorse and wagon on Sunday of William Stevenson, a livery stable keeper. On Sunday night they returned the rig and hurried away. After their departure the hostler found that the horse was completely exhausted and that the horse big welts on the animal's back and haunches, where he had been beaten.

In less than half an hour after his return the horse died. He was valued at $200. Yesterday Mechan and Quirk were arrested charged with cruelty to animals, and were held by Police Justice Tierney.

COMPLAIN OF CELLAR RANGETER Workmen to Hold a Mass Meeting and

A mass meeting of bakers and confectioners has been called for next Saturday in Ledwith's Hall, Forty-fifth street and Third avenue, to Hall, Forty-fifth street and Third avenue, to agitate, among other things, for better workshops. The call is issued by Local Union No. 80 of the Bakers' and Confectioners' Union, most of the members of which work in cellar bakeries. They declare that moot cellar bakeries are swarming with rats and cockroaches, and that the atmosphere is so foul in some of them that most of the bakers contract consumption, and that the bread baked under such conditions cannot be expected to be wholesome. The men also want a shorter workCay.

An Albany Boy Rescued from a Gang of Tramps.
